

INDEX

Foreword	13
-----------------------	----

ASPECTS OF BUSINESS CRIMES IN ARGENTINA & LATIN AMERICA

1. Corporate fraud as a transnational crime	17
1.1. Introduction to the Issue.	17
1.2. Corporate fraud or business corruption. Definition and analysis	19
1.3. Distinctive characteristics: transnational, mutable and modern crime, “ white collar crime ” and quantum	21
1.4. International legal framework: the 2003 United Nations Convention against Business Corruption ..	25
1.5. Local regulatory framework: possible “corporate fraud” crimes and infringement	27
1.6. Conclusion	28
2. The crime of financing terrorism	29
2.1. Drug trade, corruption, money laundering and, finally, international terrorism	29
2.2. ¿What is “terrorism”?	31
2.3. Money laundering and financing of terrorist. Differences and similarities	32
2.4. Architecture of the financial system against terrorism	35
2.5. Regulatory Sources of the International System ..	39
2.5.1. United Nations Convention 1999 (the “Convention”).	39

2.5.2. UN Security Council Resolution 1373 . .	40
2.5.3. The nine FATF special recommendations on terrorist financing	41
2.6. Brief reference to the latin-american legislation on the issue	41
2.7. The present system of our country	44
2.7.1. Argentina shall categorize terrorism financing crime as soon as possible . .	44
2.7.2. General characteristics of the terrorism financing crime	46
2.7.3. Administrative framework imposed by the Central Bank of the Argentine Republic (BCRA) and the National Securities and Exchange Commission (CNV)	48
2.8. Conclusion	50
3. The universal jurisdiction of transnational crimes . .	51
3.1. Extraterritoriality of transnational crimes in a globalized world	51
3.2. The spanish case: acknowledgement of a universal justice for the cases of money laundering (sec- tion 301, paragraph 4 of the Spanish Criminal Code)	56
3.3. The United States case: analysis of the recent ruling in the case "Pasquantino et al. vs. United States" .	58
3.4. Our opinion with regard to the enforcement of an universal justice to transnational crimes	61
4. Corporate governance rules	63
4.1. Sources of law and primary government agencies in charge of the corporate governance control .	63
4.2. Corporate governance liabilities of shareholders .	64
4.3. Corporate governance responsibilities of the board of directors.	66
4.4. The role of an "independent director".	68
4.5. Other key points. General principles	69
5. Criminal copyright protection	70

5.1. Introduction	70
5.2. Statistics reflecting the growth of piracy	71
5.3. Argentine legal provisions protecting copy- rights	71
5.3.1. Constitutional protection of copyright. . .	71
5.3.2. Legal provisions in general	71
5.3.3. Law 11,723, the Intellectual Property Law	72
5.3.4. Protection of Foreign Works.	74
5.4. Conclusion	74
6. New anti-money laundering legal framework	75
6.1. Introduction	75
6.2. Amendments to the Penal Code of Argentina . .	76
6.3. The Financial Information Unit.	77
6.4. Duty to “report suspicious operations” to the FIU and the criminal administrative system	78
6.5. Conclusion	79
7. Environmental criminal law	79
8. Penal tax regime in Argentina (law 24,769, publ. 1/15/1997; last amendment, February 2004)	81
8.1. Tax crimes	81
8.2. Crimes related to social security resources. . .	82
8.3. Common tax crimes	83
8.4. Title 4: Miscellaneous.	84
8.5. Title 5: Administrative and Penal Proceedings . .	85
9. Criminal exchange regime	86
9.1. Introduction	86
9.2. Law 19,359. Amended text by Decree 480/95 (Official Gazette 9/25/1995)	87
10. Infringement and improper use of trademarks and design	98
10.1. Introduction	98
10.2. Law 22,362. Pertaining Part (Official Gazette 1/2/1981)	99

11. Penal regime in the retirement and pension system (AFJP)	100
11.1. Introduction	100
11.2. Law 24,241. Pertaining Part (Official Gazette 10/18/1993)	101
12. Confidentiality of information	106
12.1. Introduction	106
12.2. Law 24,766 (Official Gazette 12/30/1996).....	107
13. Corporate fraud and asset recovery in Argentina .	108
13.1. Introduction	108
13.2. Managing internal fraud investigations	109
13.2.1. Retrieval of documents	109
13.2.2. Obtaining oral evidence from employees ..	111
13.3. Privilege	112
13.4. Disclosure from third parties	113
13.5. Steps to preserve assets/documents	113
13.5.1. Protection of assets	113
13.5.2. Protection of relevant documents	114
13.6. Civil & criminal proceedings.	114
14. Argentine legal framework against corruption in the public & private sector	114
14.1. Introduction	114
14.2. Legal framework.....	115
14.2.1. International Anti-corruption Conven- tions	115
14.2.2. Foreign and domestic bribery laws	115
14.2.3. Legal framework of the foreign bribery ..	116
14.2.4. Travel and entertainment restrictions ..	117
14.2.5. Penalties and sanctions. Civil and criminal enforcement	117
14.2.6. Agency enforcement.....	118
14.2.7. Recent shifts in the patterns of enforcement of the foreign bribery laws and regula- tions	118

14.2.8. Self-disclosure of violations	119
14.2.9. Duty of a company or a person to disclose a case of corruption or fraud	119
14.2.10. Dispute resolution	119
14.2.11. Domestic bribery. Legal framework . . .	120
14.2.12. Public official participation in commercial activities	121
14.2.13. Private commercial bribery	121
14.2.14. Law and regulation about financial record-keeping	122
14.2.15. Penalties and sanctions for accounting violations	123

FEDERAL CRIMINAL PROCEDURE

1. Standing in Argentine Federal Criminal Procedure . . .	125
1.1. Argentine Criminal System. General overview . . .	125
1.2. A criminal case	125
1.3. Two different phases of the criminal procedure	126
1.3.1. The investigation	126
1.3.2. The oral trial	127
1.4. General principles of criminal procedure	128

E-MAIL AND THE RIGHT TO PRIVACY

Are companies entitled to access their employees' e-mails?

1. Statement of the situation	129
2. Regulatory framework required to analyze the subject at issue	132
3. General rule: employers are forbidden to access employees' e-mails	135
4. Exceptions to the rule: a company may have access to its employees' e-mails in exceptional cases of flagrancy, urgency, self-defense, commercial necessity, and authorization by the employees, among others	137

4.1. Flagrance, urgency and risk of losing evidence . .	137
4.2. The employee gives prior consent to such monitoring	138
4.3. Due distinction between labor and private e-mail (“Yahoo”, “Hotmail”, “Messenger”, and the like)	139
4.4. One of the parties in the e-mail communication produces evidence to the company—the so-called “provocative agent”	140
4.6. General considerations.	142
5. Stance-taking	143
Argentine Penal Code (2007 edition)	145